BILL PASSES ALLOWING SEPT. 11 VICTIMS TO SUE SAUDI ARABIA

The U.S. Senate passed legislation on Tuesday that would allow survivors and relatives of those killed in the Sept. 11 attacks to file lawsuits seeking damages against the government of Saudi Arabia. The legislation, known as the Justice Against Sponsors of Terrorism Act, or JASTA, passed in the Senate by unanimous voice vote. If it passes the House of Representatives and is signed into law by U.S. President Barack Obama, JASTA would allow lawsuits to proceed in federal court in New York as lawyers try to prove that the Saudis were involved in the 2001 attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. REUTERS

PFIZER BAN ON LETHAL DRUG SALES COMPLICATES EXECUTIONS IN 20 STATES

More than 20 states that use a combination of drugs to carry out lethal injections will find it harder to conduct executions due to Pfizer's ban on sales of its chemicals, but the move will have little impact on the handful that rely on a single drug. The pharmaceutical giant's move last week cuts off the last major U.S. source for drugs in the deadly mixes, and it adds to the difficulties of states that were already struggling to procure chemicals for lethal injections. Among the states affected are Florida and Oklahoma, which have been among the leaders in executions since the U.S. Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976. REUTERS

APPLE BOSS COOK TO TAP INDIAN SOFTWARE TALENT DURING VISIT

Apple is set to announce plans to expand its Indian software development center and build an accelerator program for local start-ups, two sources aware of the investment said on Tuesday, hours before CEO Tim Cook's maiden visit. Cook is making his Indian debut just as the country emerges as one of the last large growth markets in the smartphone world, while sales in the United States and China begin to taper off. Among other officials, he is due to meet Prime Minister Narendra Modi later in the week. Over 100 million smartphones were sold in India last year, a number that is expected to grow by 25 percent this year. Sales of Apple's iPhones — which have a 2 percent market share in the country — grew 56 percent in the first three months of 2016. REUTERS

Boston Public Schools students stage second walkout over funding

Turnout smaller than predicted after school officials warn students they would be marked absent if they left class.

SPENCER BUELL
spencerbuell@metro.us

For the second time this year, Boston Public Schools students walked out of class, ignoring warnings about unexcused absences to take to the streets Tuesday to call for an increase in funding for public schools.

Around 200 protesters left their classrooms around 1 p.m. Tuesday and converged on City Hall Plaza in the early afternoon. Despite predictions of a massive turnout, the demonstration was much smaller than the walkout in March, when thousands took part.

But the students who showed up had strong words for city officials.

"We will not take these budget cuts lying down!" shouted 16-year-old Isaac Hoeh, of the Boston Latin School, one of the many students who gave speeches amplified by a pair of speakers pointed at City Hall.

"Hey all my people!" they chanted. "I got a story! To tell the whole wide world this is students' territory!"

Fania Joseph, a student at the Boston Community Leadership Academy who was wearing an orange vest identifying her as a "peace marshal," said there was a lot to be concerned about at her school and in the district at large.

The student-teacher ratio is too high, she said, and the school has lost teachers and had funding for its library reduced. She worries about the impact cuts to special education will have on her peers, she said.

Joseph took aim at Mayor Marty Walsh, who has said he believes students are being misled by grown-ups and special interest groups.

Walsh repeated that claim in an interview with Boston Herald Radio on Tuesday. "There's no question in my mind that there's adults behind this," he said, without elaborating on who they are.

But Joseph said she's been studying the issues on her own.

"We're not misinformed," she said of Walsh. "He's misinformed."

Adult volunteers and education advocates at the rally handed out snacks, water and stickers from a folding table. Others helped off-age students register to vote. Parents, some holding signs, stood among protesters.

Mom Maria Christina Blanco — clutching a giant poster reading "Full funding 4 BCLA & BPS" — said she worried about cuts and programming changes at the BCLA, where her daughter is a 10th-grader.

"I want her to have the same opportunities she had when she applied," she said.

Later, dozens of students packed a meeting of Boston's City Council, where a hearing on the budget as it relates to student health and well-being was scheduled. Many of the young protesters signed up to testify during a public comment period.

Among them was 17-year-old Harry Saunders, a student at Boston's Snowden International School.

"We are going to keep fighting until we get the education we were promised," Saunders said in an interview. "We're not just a bunch of kids."

Councilor Tito Jackson, who has publicly supported the protesting students and invited them to the hearing, said he was "proud" of their advocacy.

"I for one am very proud of each and every one of the people who are exactly what we need to see, which is leadership in their generation," Jackson said at the hearing, speaking to the students.

Before the protest, school officials urged students not to leave class and warned would-be protesters that those who do would be marked absent, and also promised to send automated voice messages to their parents.

Walsh has defended the proposed $1 billion school budget, which the Boston School Committee approved in March. It includes a $13.5 million funding increase over the previous year, as well as cuts to special education.

Critics, among them Jackson, have said the increase does not keep up with inflation.

Tuesday's scheduled pretrial hearing for Michael McCarthy, the man accused of killing 2-year-old Bella Bond last year, has been postponed until June 9.

McCarthy, of Quincy, faces a first-degree murder charge for allegedly beating the child to death by punching her again and again in the stomach.

He had been scheduled to appear in Suffolk Superior Court Tuesday afternoon.

Police found Bond's body in a trash bag on the shores of Deer Island on June 25, 2015, and for nearly three months labored to identify her.

During that time, she had been known as "Baby Doe."

McCarthy was held without bail in January and has maintained he is innocent.

A Salem woman trying to recover her friend's keys fell three stories down a trash chute and broke her leg when she landed in a trash compactor that turned on.

Loring Towers resident Nelia Linatopi was offered $20 to help a friend whose keys were stuck to a garbage bag and accidentally went down the chute with trash, WCVB reported.

Linatopi's first strategy was for someone to hold her feet while she entered the chute headfirst, WHDH reported. After that method failed to recover the keys, Linatopi had a friend tie a sheet to her, and she was lowered into the chute.

When the sheet tore, she fell from the second floor and landed in the basement's trash compactor, which turned on and broke her leg, WHDH added. Linatopi was screaming in pain when police arrived on the scene.

"The person who lost the key could have just asked the office for a new key," Jesenia Morales, a resident of Loring Towers, told WCVB. "They make keys here."

Linatopi was moved to Massachusetts General Hospital, where she was expected to recover, according to WCVB. Police were investigating the incident.

Trump campaign to NY Times: Apologize for Sunday article

The paper said it has no plans to retract the story, which includes interviews with over 50 women who worked with or knew Trump.

An attorney for the Trump Organization demanded that The New York Times apologize for a Sunday front-page story exploring the Republican front-runner's relationships with women, though he walked back the possibility the campaign might sue over the coverage.

The newspaper said it has no plans to retract the story, which includes interviews with over 50 women who worked with or knew Trump socially over a period spanning four decades.

The demands come after one woman — whose anecdote about meeting Trump at a Mar-a-Lago pool party in 1990 are in the story's introduction — reportedly said she was unhappy with the characterization of her interview in the story.

Ms. Brewer Lane, at the time a 26-year-old model, did as Mr. Trump asked. "I went into the bathroom and tried one on," she recalled. It was a bikini. "I came out, and he said, 'Wow.'"

Mr. Trump, then 44 and in the midst of his first divorce, decided to show her off to the crowd at Mar-a-Lago, his estate in Palm Beach, Florida.

"He brought me out to the pool and said, 'That is a stunning Trump girl, isn't it?'" Ms. Brewer Lane said.

"Actually, it was very upsetting. I was not happy to read it at all," Brewer

Lane reportedly told "Fox & Friends" Monday morning. "Well, because The New York Times told us several times that they would make sure that my story that I was telling came across. They promised several times that they would do it accurately. They told me several times and my manager several times that it would not be a hit piece and that my story would come across the way that I was telling it and honestly, and it absolutely was not."

Lane reportedly said reporters took her quotes and "put a negative connotation on it" that she did not intend.

"He never made me feel like I was being demeaned in any way," she told the hosts. "He never offended me in any way. He was very gracious. I saw him around all types of people, all types of women. He was very kind, thoughtful, generous, you know. He was a gentleman."

A statement from the paper provided to Politico said that Lane was "quoted fairly, accurately and at length." CHRIS CAESAR

Three bombings in Baghdad kill 70 in worst violence so far this year

At least 72 people were killed and more than 140 wounded by three bombings in Baghdad on Tuesday, police and medical sources said, extending the deadliest spate of attacks in the Iraqi capital so far this year.

Islamic State claimed one suicide bombing which killed 38 people and wounded over 70 in a marketplace in the northern, mainly Shi'ite Muslim district of al-Shaab.

A car bomb in nearby Shi'ite Sadr City killed at least 28 dead and 57 wounded, and another car blew up in the mixed Shi'ite-Sunni neighborhood of al-Rasheed, south of the capital, killing six and wounding 21, the sources said.

Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi ordered the arrest of the security official in charge of al-Shaab's security after the attack. Abadi's office said in a statement, without giving a reason for the detention.

Attacks claimed by IS in and around the city last week killed more than 100 people, the highest death toll in so few days so far this year, sparking anger and street protests over the government's failure to ensure security.

With the latest death tolls, fears are growing that Baghdad could relapse into the blood-letting of a decade ago when sectarian-motivated suicide bombings killed scores of people every week. REUTERS

BRIEF

Russian opposition leader Alexei Navalny and supporters attacked

Russian opposition leader Alexei Navalny and fellow anti-corruption activists were attacked, thrown to the ground and kicked by a group of men at an airport in southern Russia, according to video posted on social media.

Footage showed the assailants, described by Navalny as Cossacks and wearing traditional fur hats, some in military-style fatigues and black boots, showering the group with milk outside the terminal of Anapa airport, about 900 miles south of Moscow, before setting upon them.

Dmitry Slaboda, one of the Cossacks, said the original plan had been just to throw milk at Navalny and his supporters and to hurl insults at them, but that things had turned violent after one of them had elbowed an old Cossack to the ground.

"The fight broke out because of that blow," Slaboda told the Gовorit Moskva radio station. "We just wanted to show them that there is no room here for Navalny who lives on American money."

One of the activists could be seen lying prone on the ground after being kicked in the head. Navalny said the man later had to be hospitalized. Five others, including Navalny himself, also suffered injuries.

Cossack paramilitaries, who style themselves as conservative patriots, helped Russia annex Crimea from Ukraine in 2014. Cossack militia members also attacked the Pussy Riot punk group with whips and teargas at the Winter Olympics host city of Sochi in 2014 as they tried to perform a song mocking Vladimir Putin. Canadian wildfire shifts north, prolonging oil sands shutdown

Some 8,000 workers were evacuated in the heavily forested northern part of the province.

A massive wildfire around the oil sands hub of Fort McMurray, Alberta, moved toward energy production facilities on Tuesday, extending a shutdown that has led to lost Canadian output of 1 million barrels a day.

The uncontrolled blaze covered 355,000 hectares (877,224 acres), up from 285,000 hectares on Monday. High temperatures and winds were working against firefighters, officials said.

None of the oil sands have caught fire, and the industry was redoubling efforts to ensure facilities were well-protected, said Alberta wildfire manager Chad Morrison.

"Experience has taught

The wildfire was taking a toll on the province's economy with the lost oil production. GETTY IMAGES us because of the cleared vegetation, lots of gravel on site and because they have an industrial fire-fighting service on site that understands this ... we feel fairly confident the sites themselves will be OK," Morrison told a news conference.

The lost Canadian production of 1 million barrels a day represents about one-quarter of total Canadian output. Global oil prices touched a six-month high on Tuesday, with the Canadian outages among factors lending support.

Alberta Premier Rachel Notley said westerly winds were expected to push the fire closer to facilities operated by Suncor Energy Inc., one of the area's biggest operators, and Syncrude, majority owned by Suncor, on Tuesday.

Suncor started a staged and orderly shutdown of its base plant operations, while Syncrude has evacuated the majority of its workforce to Edmonton but left a minimum staff of about 100 people at its Mildred Lake upgrader and Aurora Mine.

The fire also threatened Enbridge Inc.'s Cheecham crude oil tank farm south of Fort McMurray, but Notley said the fire line built there has held and winds were blowing away from the facility.

TransAlta Corp's Poplar Creek cogeneration power plant, which provides power to Suncor, was also shut by early Tuesday due to the wildfire.

Prior to the latest setback, lost oil production was expected to average about 1.2 million barrels a day for 14 days, or roughly C$985 million ($763 million) in lost real GDP, according to the Conference Board of Canada.

Notley said the Conference Board's numbers were in the range of the government's estimates.

Mexico's president proposes allowing same sex marriage nationally

Mexico's president on Tuesday proposed allowing same sex marriage nationally, the latest in a series of progressive policies in a traditionally conservative country.

The presidency said on Twitter that President Enrique Peña Nieto had "announced the signing of a reform initiative which includes the recognition of the right to get married without any form of discrimination."

Same sex marriage is currently permitted in Mexico City, as well as in several states, including Coahuila, Quintana Roo, Jalisco, Nayarit, Chihuahua and Sonora.

Mexico's Supreme Court said last year that laws restricting marriage to a man and woman were unconstitutional and a Supreme Court judge urged states to legalize gay marriage.

People participate in the Gay Pride Parade in Mexico City. GETTY IMAGES

However, many state legislatures have not changed their statutes to comply, meaning couples must file legal challenges case by case to get married. Gay marriage is still banned under local laws in many of Mexico's 31 states. Both the presidency and Peña Nieto's Twitter avatars were overlaid with the rainbow flag of gay pride to mark the international day against homophobia and transphobia.

#Sinhomofobia, or #Nohomofobia, read banners on Peña Nieto's Twitter account.

The announcement came just weeks after Peña Nieto proposed relaxing laws on marijuana.

Twin Peaks discuss their version of 'Heaven'

"Have you tried LSD?"

A.D. AMOROSI
@MetroPhilly
lecters@metrouis

Chicago garage punks Twin Peaks have been pals since they were grade school kids, and began blasting forth their buoyant brand of fizzy rock since they were barely out of junior high in 2010, with two quickly recorded, speedily running albums — the dreamy, cloudy "Sunken" and the cutting, clarion "Wild Onion."

Guitarists Cadien Lake James and Clay Frankel wrote most of their band's terpsichorean tracks with bassist Jack Dolan on vocals. For their new album, however, "Down in Heaven," Twin Peaks slows things — yet hope you'll mosh just as hard when they come to your town.

jectory of an album every two years. Does this come down to contractual obligation or, is a seasonal thing, like, it's spring, so the swallows must fly to Capistrano? It's good combination of urge and habit. We could probably put together enough material to make an album or two every year because all four songwriters are writing almost all the time. You just have to play the game and take time to promote and tour on a record for a while.

I know you didn't get the band name from the David Lynch series. Since naming yourselves though, have you ever run across Lynch or any of his people?

We haven't had any kind of legal altercation or anything. He's very gracious with us actually. We played his club in Paris last February and then did a cover of "In Dreams" by Roy Orbison with Tennis at the David Lynch Foundation fundraiser concert in L.A., both of which were cool and a little bit scary. When we named ourselves Twin Peaks, no one thought we'd end up playing in front of the creator of the actual show in a big auditorium in L.A. someday. Who knows though, when the new season comes on we may be in some real trouble.

What was the first song written for "Down in Heaven" that would come to push the agenda of the rest of the album? I had an instant feeling when I first heard the demo to "Walk to the One You Love." I feel like we wanted to run with that. Other Clay songs I remember working on early, like "Cold Lips" or "Wanted You," had a clear vibe to it. It was classic Cadien-Clay, but so throwback I could hear it right away. I based the songs I wrote for the record off of those few songs.

You talk about heaven quite a few times on the new album. Are you religious at all?

No, not really. Not in any specific sense. Heaven is just heaven. Have you tried LSD?

I don't believe this, but I saw one critique of "Down in Heaven" as your tribute to the '60s, icons like the Beatles, the Kinks and the Rolling Stones. Do you care about those guys? Obviously yeah, we love those bands, but I don't know, I think people look too far into that fact. There's no shrine in the studio or anything like that. I don't think any of us are actively trying to sound like anything in particular either, but we definitely give our take on old school rock 'n' roll.

Rooney's welcomed return

Rooney's infectious, sunny Cali-pop rock was perfectly timed with the age of pop culture's West Coast obsession in the early 2000s. Frontman Robert Schwartzman — who comes from the illustrious Coppola bloodline, along with brother Jason — decided to put the band on hiatus following the 2010 release of "Eureka," after a string of hits, including "I'm Shakin'" and "When Did Your Heart Go Missing?"

"I wasn't feeling inspired or excited. I knew I needed to take a break," Schwartzman says. "[For 'Washed Away,'] I started getting super-fired-up again about the idea of touring and putting the new album out. Rooney is about songs and lyrics and music, not about that other stuff."

By "other stuff" he means a meticulously calculated returned. Schwartzman took a break from Rooney to pursue other interests like his film "Dreamland." Despite Coppola legacy (he scored cousin Gia's "Palo Alto" in 2013), Schwartzman has always been adamant in identifying himself as a musician first, but he says swapping industries has allowed him to see music from a new point of view.

"['Dreamland'] is my first time directing something and it's a new world," he says. "I find it really interesting because there's an innocence when you start something without knowing it really well. At the end of the day, there are parallels in film and music."

Now a full-length Rooney return, "Washed Away," released earlier this month, and a subsequent tour are underway, kicking off just as Schwartzman finished promoting "Dreamland" at the Tribeca Film Festival. The indie dramedy also caused the singer-songwriter to look at the layers of his album with the same meticulous detail a film requires.

"Music is layers of arrangements, but a movie is incredible because you're mixing the sound effects, like birds tweeting and crickets chirping, when the dialogue should get louder or softer," Schwartzman explains. "Then there's the way it looks. Do you boost the yellows? Or the red? Is it too dark or underexposed? There are all of these wonderful things that are so layered [in a movie]. It's an album times so many, because you have to be aware of many many things. It made me go back to my album and say, 'How do we dial it in and make sure everything is where we want it to be?'"

Find Skin Cancer Early: Dana-Farber Wants You to Know Your ABCDEs

With an estimated 8,500 new cases of skin cancer diagnosed in the U.S. every day, it is important that you not only protect yourself from the sun's UV rays, but also regularly check your skin for anything out of the ordinary. While freckles and moles are often harmless, it is important to perform regular self-exams and follow the ABCDEs (asymmetry, border, color, diameter and evolution) to determine if a mark could be something more serious. If any spots seem unusual, consult your doctor as soon as possible.

What exactly do these ABCDEs mean? Protect yourself and check out this infographic.

To learn more about melanoma and skin cancer research and treatment visit DanaFarber.org.

Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, a principal teaching affiliate of Harvard Medical School, is world renowned for its leadership in adult and pediatric cancer treatment and research. Designated as a comprehensive cancer center by the National Cancer Institute (NCI), it is one of the largest recipients among independent hospitals of NCI and National Institutes of Health grant funding. For more information, go to www.dana-farber.org. Follow Dana-Farber on Facebook: www.facebook.com/danafarbercancerinstitute and on Twitter: @danafarber.

Find Skin Cancer Early Know your

When is a mole skin cancer? Look for these signs:

Half of the mole does not match the other.

The mole is larger than 6 millimeters across (about the size of a pencil eraser), although melanomas can sometimes be smaller.

The edges are irregular, jagged or blurred.

The mole is changing in size, shape or color.

The color of the mole is not all the same and may include shades of brown, black and sometimes patches of pink, white, red, or blue.

Remember:

Some melanomas do not fit the rules of 'ABCDE' so it is important to tell your doctor about any new changes to your skin.

LASIK & Beyond

Taking Human Sight To The Next Level

At New England Eye Center, we truly are taking sight to the next level. Thanks to recent advances in laser and lens implant technology, our highly-trained specialists are helping patients of all ages enjoy the type of clearer, more natural vision they desire. Vision for the way we live here in New England!

From our all-laser, bladeless LASIK procedure – to exciting developments like our Visian Implantable lens - our commitment to leading edge technology is surpassed only by our dedication to personalized patient care. Patients of New England Eye Center find confidence in knowing we offer experience you can trust and technology you can rely on.

NASA-Approved LASIK - Our all-laser, bladeless LASIK at New England Eye Center has greatly improved results and helped take the fear out of having LASIK. The vast majority of our LASIK and PRK patients now achieve 20/20 vision at distance without glasses or contact lenses. Our method of LASIK is the same type approved for NASA astronauts and military pilots.

Implantable Contact Lens - New England Eye Center is among a select group of practices in the country offering patients the benefits of the Visian Implantable Collamer Lens (ICL). Unlike LASIK, the Visian corrects vision by inserting a delicate intraocular lens-like device atop the eye's natural lens, which is why the Visian is also referred to as the 'Implantable Contact Lens.' All of the refractive surgeons at New England Eye Center are qualified and experienced in performing this brief outpatient procedure to insert the Visian ICL. Because no corneal or other tissue is removed in the Visian ICL procedure, visual recovery is extremely rapid and the ICL can potentially be replaced if the eye's focus changes over time.

Refractive Lens Exchange - If you're frustrated with reading glasses and bifocals, our refractive specialists perform a procedure known as Refractive Lens Exchange. By replacing your eye's aging natural lens with a Intraocular Lens Implant customized specifically for your visual needs - and your lifestyle - allowing you to see better, look younger and never have to worry about developing cataracts!

Laser Cataract Surgery - For seniors experiencing changes in their vision – or who have been diagnosed with a cataract – New England Eye Center is turning the dream of Laser Cataract Surgery into reality. We are currently among only the top 3% of practices in the country to offer patients the added precision and accuracy of Laser Cataract Surgery using OptiMedica® Catalys™ Precision Laser System.

This year, take your vision to the NEXT LEVEL by giving yourself or a loved one the Gift of Sight. Now that's a Gift that keeps on Giving. A blessed New Year from the surgeons and staff of New England Eye Center.

New YEAR, New VISION, New YOU!

Still looking at life through rose-colored glasses or contact lenses? Make 2016 the year you resolve to join the millions of men and women enjoying NEW VISION thanks to advancements in eye care from LASIK laser vision correction, to Visian ICL™ (Implantable Collamer Lens) and Laser Cataract Surgery.

Take advantage of our LASIK & Beyond New Year's Resolution Celebration now underway at New England Eye Center. Make 2016 the year you resolve to join the millions of men and women enjoying NEW VISION. From providing routine general eye care, to the latest breakthroughs in LASIK laser vision correction - or the recent advancements in ICL technology and Laser Cataract Surgery - our surgeons and staff are committed to making this new year the best of all.

Tricks of the trade: Small-space design hacks

No, these tips won't add to your square footage — but they will make your living room look bigger.

MONICA WEYMOUTH
letters@metro.us

Now that tiny homes are trending, there's no shortage of meticulously appointed, impossibly crafty spaces flooding design blogs. But say you're not an architect customizing a beach-front surf shack. Or a reality TV show designer outfitting a mini ski chalet. Say you're just like the rest of us: feeling a little claustrophobic in your cramped house, and a bit squeezed by your cramped-house budget. We checked in with New York interior designer and small-scale expert Gale Sitomer for some tips that anyone — even you, even us — can pull off this weekend.

White means light

If you're supersavvy, you might want to experiment with creating dimension via two-tone walls or accent colors. If not? Stick with the time-tested, patron saint of small spaces: white paint. "There's no better color to reflect light in a room and make it feel larger — I even paint my trim and base the same as the walls to allow the maximum amount of light to enter a room," says Sitomer, who recommends soft-yet-sparkling Moonlight White and Simply White by Benjamin Moore. "Nothing makes a room feel larger." For a twist, try introducing texture with a white wallpaper.

Make up with mirrors

A bad statement mirror is really, really bad — looking at you, 1960s paneled walls. But a good statement mirror can open up a tiny room like nothing else. "Just because our grandmothers used framed mirrors doesn't mean they won't work in the present," explains Sitomer. "In smaller spaces, such as bathrooms or powder rooms, we've mirrored whole walls. Paint the ceiling the palest blue to create some interest."

Mix up your lighting

Smart lighting is essential to any space, true. But lighting schemes can make or break smaller rooms, which can go from blindingly bright to dim and dingy with the flip of a switch. If you're low on square footage, make sure to have a variety of fixtures to create the illusion of depth. "We can't say enough about good lighting!" Sitomer says. "It's important to have a mix of overhead lighting with ceiling fixtures and ambient lighting with lamps. Then, install dimmers to control the mood."

SPORTS GOSSIP: PATRIOTS RUMORS, DRUGS, BASEBALL AND RUSSELL WILSON

When conservative Patriots fans and writers say, "That will never happen" when it comes to rumors of Bill Belichick signing a big name in free agency or trading for a household-name player, the fantasy-land people come back with, "Yeah but what about 2007?!!!"

That was the year the Patriots seemingly loaded up with Randy Moss and Wes Welker. Many people thought the Pats would "go for it" again in the wake of Deflategate. After all, what better way to shut people up than to continue to rack up Super Bowl wins?

In hindsight the Moss and Welker moves had more to do with it simply being the right time than the Patriots trying to get revenge on the league (some of the shine came off the Pats dynasty in 2006 when they choked away the AFC title game against the Colts).

The Pats didn't exactly load up in free agency last year when the Deflategate hate was at a high and they haven't exactly wowed this offseason either in the splashy name department.

Chris Long was closest thing to a sexy signing for the Pats and right now it looks highly unlikely that they'll bring in an oldie but goodie like fellow defensive end Dwight Freeney, who remains a free agent. Freeney, a former chief rival of the Pats from his time with the Colts, told The MMQB this week that he's not "against Bill [Belichick]" and "both sides would win" if he wound up signing in New England.

Don't hold your breath.

DVR-worthy for sure

Bill Simmons is no longer at ESPN, but the network continues to crank out solid "30 for 30" sports documentaries (Simmons was an executive producer of the series). Mark your calendars for this one. "Doc & Darryl," which will explore the troubled lives and careers of former Mets stars Doc Gooden and Darryl Strawberry, will premiere on ESPN on July 14 at 9 p.m.

Gooden admitted a few years back that he was doing coke in a sketchy Long Island apartment during the Mets' 1986 championship parade and was too paranoid to be there, and Strawberry's drug issues are also well-documented.

Should be fascinating.

Whipped Wilson

Russell Wilson's fiancée Ciara was denied sole custody of the 1-year-old son she shares with hip-hop artist Future this week. Ciara claimed that Future was "a bad parent who was not present in the child's life," according to TMZ, but the California court sided with Future's reps.

Wilson, the quarterback for the Seattle Seahawks, made headlines last year when he said he was saving sex with Ciara until marriage. Further confirmation that Wilson is hopelessly whipped — he delivered a commencement speech at the University of Wisconsin last weekend. Instead of offering the typical "spread your wings kids, you're ready to fly" mumbo jumbo, Wilson offered this advice to the Class of 2016:

"If you're dating a woman that's way out of your league, ask her to marry you."

Talk about false modesty. We all know Wilson routinely makes those "10 hottest NFL players" listicles.

Double dip

Hanley Ramirez, right, and the Red Sox will take on the defending World Series champion Royals twice today in a doubleheader in KC. Steven Wright will get the ball in Game 1 (2:15 p.m., NESN) and David Price will start for the Sox in Game 2 (8:15 p.m., NESN). GETTY IMAGES

Aries Don't let a co-worker or superior make you feel guilty or doubt your ability. Don't be afraid to negotiate, and don't hesitate to take charge of your future. Update your resume.

Taurus Live in the moment and take time to enjoy the people you love and the things that make you happy. It's up to you to take responsibility for your success.

Gemini Review personal finances to find out where you stand and what you can afford. Temptation will rear its head if you become restless. Put your possessions and money in a safe place.

Cancer Host an event at your place. Offer suggestions to old friends and make a point to listen to ideas and collaborate with someone you think would make a good business partner.

Leo Let your personality shine. Take part in events that challenge you and make you think about your life and available options. Stop worrying about others.

Virgo Look at the big picture and gather all the information you can. You will benefit from a change of pace or from tweaking your skills or re-evaluating your beliefs.

Libra You'll be challenged if you oppose a deal or neglect legal or health issues. Pick up the pace and take care of matters before someone else takes control.

Scorpio Partnerships will depend on priorities. No matter what the deal or who is involved, don't rule out an obscure idea or plan if it feels right to you.

Sagittarius You'll be taken advantage of if you are overly friendly or accommodating. Don't get involved in a scheme you know little about. Get the lowdown before you give the go-ahead.

Capricorn Avoid anyone who is emotionally unpredictable. Look for projects that will improve a very special personal relationship as well as your home environment.

Aquarius Steer clear of anyone trying to pressure you. Avoid a disagreement with someone close to you. Putting in extra time at work will help you get ahead.

Pisces Being a participant will encourage you to stand up for your rights and concerns. You can make a difference if you are precise and detailed with your reasoning and solutions. EUGENIA LAST
